

Diversity, Equity, Access, Inclusion

STATEMENT

When Ninah Cummer bequeathed her art collection and riverfront home to establish the Cummer Museum of Art & Gardens, she noted her desire to create “a center of beauty and culture” for the benefit of “all of the people.” Museums were created to be a safe space to invoke conversation and bring people together to create meaningful experiences. The Cummer Museum is committed to listening and learning how it can best serve all in our community.

We are committed to ensuring that diversity, equity, access, and inclusion are deeply woven into the fabric of the Cummer Museum. We recognize and promote the importance of diversity in thought, and through age, race, gender, sexual orientation, differing abilities, and religion, which adds to the richness of our environment and what we provide to our community. In our Diversity Statement and Plan, our goal is to foster a culture that celebrates inclusion, equity, and access. To ensure compliance of our commitment, an annual audit will be conducted and reviewed by Museum leadership and our Board of Trustees.
